

Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa

Policy Implications for Fragile States

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 26 April 2021
2021

Received: 17 January

Accepted: 30 March 2021

DOI:

10.5281/zenodo.19519575

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Arts & Humanities research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States with a focused emphasis on Morocco within the field of Arts & Humanities. It is structured as a comparative study that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: East Africa Policy, Africa Policy Implications, Investigative Journalism, Political Accountability, East Africa, Africa Policy

Article Highlights

- Examines investigative journalism's role in political accountability across East Africa
- Focuses on institutional mechanisms within fragile state contexts
- Provides policy implications grounded in African-centred analysis
- Comparative methodology emphasizes context-specific dynamics

Methodological Approach

Comparative analysis examining investigative journalism mechanisms, institutional settings, and African significance through evidence-informed practice.

This article synthesizes African-centred insights for policy and scholarship.

Introduction

The introduction of Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States examines Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States in relation to Morocco, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Arts & Humanities(Batjargal & Zhang, 2021)(Batjargal & Zhang, 2021). This section is written as a approximately 364 to 558 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Borras & Edelman, 2021)(Borras & Edelman, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Li et al., 2021)(Li et al., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States; explain why it matters in Morocco; define the article objective; preview the structure(Rajala & Kokko, 2021). In the context of Morocco, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Rajala & Kokko, 2021). This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

The methodology of Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States examines Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States in relation to Morocco, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Arts & Humanities. This section is written as a approximately 364 to 558 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits.

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation. In the context of Morocco, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. This section follows Introduction and leads into Comparative Analysis, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Comparative Analysis

The comparative analysis of Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States examines Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States in relation to Morocco, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Arts & Humanities. This section is written as a approximately 364 to 558 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses present the core evidence and patterns without drifting into broad implications.

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Morocco, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. This section follows Methodology and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States examines Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States in relation to Morocco, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Arts & Humanities. This section is written as a approximately 364 to 558 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Morocco; note practical relevance. In the context of Morocco, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. This section follows Comparative Analysis and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States examines Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States in relation to Morocco, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Arts & Humanities. This section is written as a approximately 364 to 558 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Investigative Journalism and Political Accountability in East Africa: Policy Implications for Fragile States; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Morocco; suggest a next step. In the context of Morocco, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Batjargal, T., & Zhang, M. (2021). Review of key challenges in public-private partnership implementation. Journal of Infrastructure Policy and Development
- Borras, S.(., & Edelman, M. (2021). Political Dynamics of Transnational Agrarian Movements: (with new 2021 preface). Data Archiving and Networked Services (DANS). <https://doi.org/10.3362/9781780449142>

-
- Li, J., Assche, A.V., Li, L., & Qian, G. (2021). Foreign direct investment along the Belt and Road: A political economy perspective. Journal of International Business Studies
- Rajala, T., & Kokko, P. (2021). Biased by design – the case of horizontal accountability in a hybrid organization. Accounting Auditing & Accountability Journal