ABSTRACT

This article examines Banking Sector Development and Economic Growth in East Africa: Evidence and Policy: A Critical Examination with a focused emphasis on Egypt within the field of African Studies. It is structured as a mixed methods study that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Banking Sector Development, East Africa Evidence, Banking Sector, Sector Development, Economic Growth, East Africa

Article Highlights

- Examines banking sector development and economic growth in East Africa with focus on Egypt
- Employs mixed methods approach with quantitative modelling of key associations
- Foregrounds institutional and policy dynamics specific to African contexts
- Provides practical conclusions linked to evidence-informed policy recommendations

Methodological Approach

Mixed methods study employing quantitative modelling ( $Y = \beta_0 + \beta_1X_1 + \beta_2X_2 + \epsilon$ ) alongside qualitative analysis of institutional and policy dynamics in East African context.

This article offers context-specific insights for African economic policy and scholarship.
