ABSTRACT

This article examines The WTO and Africa: Participation, Interests, and Outcomes in Multilateral Trade Negotiations: Theoretical Framework and Empirical Analysis with a focused emphasis on Kenya within the field of African Studies. It is structured as a policy analysis article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Africa Participation Interests, Multilateral Trade Negotiations, Trade Negotiations Theoretical, Negotiations Theoretical Framework, Africa Participation, Participation Interests

Article Highlights

- Examines Africa's participation and interests in WTO negotiations through a Kenyan case study
- Presents theoretical framework and empirical analysis of multilateral trade outcomes
- Foregrounds institutional and policy dynamics specific to African contexts
- Links analytical findings to practical conclusions for policy development

Methodological Approach

Combines theoretical framework development with empirical analysis, focusing on Kenya as a representative case within broader African trade negotiation contexts.

This article provides evidence-based insights for policymakers and scholars engaged with African trade relations.
