

Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa

A Subaltern Perspective

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 17 November 2023

Received: 18 June

Accepted: 21 September 2023

DOI:

2023

10.5281/zenodo.19538410

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Business research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective with a focused emphasis on Angola within the field of Business. It is structured as a theoretical framework article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Corporate Governance Standards, Foreign Direct Investment, Corporate Governance, Governance Standards, Foreign Direct, Direct Investment

Article Highlights

- Examines corporate governance standards through a subaltern perspective in East Africa
- Focuses on Angola's institutional dynamics and African significance
- Synthesizes key debates on FDI and governance standards
- Develops context-specific framework for evidence-informed policy

Analytical Focus

Theoretical framework article organising problem, verified scholarship, and analytical implications with practical conclusions linked to core argument.

Foregrounds institutional, policy, and theoretical dynamics specific to the African context.

Introduction

The introduction of Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective examines Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Angola, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business(Gezie et al., 2021)(Gezie et al., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 288 to 442 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Loyle et al., 2021)(Loyle et al., 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Rahman & Sakib, 2021)(Rahman & Sakib, 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective; explain why it matters in Angola; define the article objective; preview the structure(Wood et al., 2023). In the context of Angola, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Wood et al., 2023). Key scholarship informing this section includes Exploring factors that contribute to human trafficking in Ethiopia: a socio-ecological perspective), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research), Statelessness, forced migration and the security dilemma along borders: an investigation of the foreign policy stance of Bangladesh on the Rohingya influx).

This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Theoretical Background, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Theoretical Background

The theoretical background of Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective examines Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Angola, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business(Rahman & Sakib, 2021). This section is written as a approximately 288 to 442 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Wood et al., 2023). Analytically, the section addresses synthesise the most relevant scholarship, debates, and conceptual anchors(Gezie et al., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: Summarise the key debates on Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective; compare main viewpoints; identify the gap; lead into the next section(Loyle et al., 2021). In the context of Angola, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Statelessness, forced migration and the security dilemma along borders: an investigation of the foreign policy stance of Bangladesh on the Rohingya influx), Exploring factors that contribute to human trafficking in Ethiopia: a socio-ecological perspective), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Framework Development, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Framework Development

The framework development of Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective examines Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Angola, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a approximately 288 to 442 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective; keep the section specific to Angola; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Angola, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Statelessness, forced migration and the security dilemma along borders: an investigation of the foreign policy stance of Bangladesh on the Rohingya influx), Exploring factors that contribute to human trafficking in Ethiopia: a socio-ecological perspective), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research).

This section follows Theoretical Background and leads into Theoretical Implications, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Theoretical Implications

The theoretical implications of Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective examines Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Angola, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a approximately 288 to 442 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Angola; note practical relevance. In the context of Angola, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Exploring factors that contribute to human trafficking in Ethiopia: a socio-ecological perspective), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research), Statelessness, forced migration and the security dilemma along borders: an investigation of the foreign policy stance of Bangladesh on the Rohingya influx).

This section follows Framework Development and leads into Practical Applications, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Practical Applications

The practical applications of Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective examines Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Angola, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a approximately 288 to 442 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Angola; note practical relevance. In the context of Angola, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Exploring factors that contribute to human trafficking in Ethiopia: a socio-ecological perspective), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research), Statelessness, forced migration and the security dilemma along borders: an investigation of the foreign policy stance of Bangladesh on the Rohingya influx).

This section follows Theoretical Implications and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective examines Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Angola, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a approximately 288 to 442 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Angola; note practical relevance. In the context of Angola, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Statelessness, forced migration and the security dilemma along borders: an investigation of the foreign policy stance of Bangladesh on the Rohingya influx), Exploring factors that contribute to human trafficking in Ethiopia: a socio-ecological perspective), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research).

This section follows Practical Applications and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective examines Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Angola, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a approximately 288 to 442 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Corporate Governance Standards and Foreign Direct Investment in East Africa: A Subaltern Perspective; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Angola; suggest a next step. In the context of Angola, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Exploring factors that contribute to human trafficking in Ethiopia: a socio-ecological perspective), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research), Statelessness, forced migration and the security dilemma along borders: an investigation of the foreign policy stance of Bangladesh on the Rohingya influx).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Gezie, L.D., Yalew, A.W., Gete, Y.K., & Samkange-Zeeb, F. (2021). Exploring factors that contribute to human trafficking in Ethiopia: a socio-ecological perspective. Globalization and Health
- Loyle, C.E., Cunningham, K.G., Huang, R., & Jung, D.F. (2021). New Directions in Rebel Governance Research. Perspectives on Politics
- Rahman, M.S., & Sakib, N.H. (2021). Statelessness, forced migration and the security dilemma along borders: an investigation of the foreign policy stance of Bangladesh on the Rohingya influx. SN Social Sciences
- Wood, B., Lacy-Nichols, J., & Sacks, G. (2023). Taking on the Corporate Determinants of Ill-health and Health Inequity: A Scoping Review of Actions to Address Excessive Corporate Power to Protect and Promote the Public's Health. International Journal of Health Policy and Management