

Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders

Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints

Abraham Kuol Nyuon<sup>1,2,3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

<sup>2</sup> Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

<sup>3</sup> SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 17 February 2021 September 2020	Received: 12	Accepted: 20 December 2020 DOI: 10.5281/zenodo.19536694
--	---------------------	---

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Business research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints with a focused emphasis on Liberia within the field of Business. It is structured as a theoretical framework article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: East African Smallholders, African Smallholders Gender, Smallholders Gender Power, Agricultural Insurance, Risk Management, East African

Article Highlights

- Examines agricultural insurance through gender and power dynamics in East Africa
- Identifies structural constraints limiting risk management for smallholders
- Provides context-specific insights for African policy and practice
- Foregrounds institutional mechanisms within the Liberian context

Core Contribution

An African-centred theoretical framework that synthesizes verified scholarship on agricultural risk management, emphasising gender, power structures, and institutional constraints specific to East African smallholders.

This article develops a publication-ready theoretical framework with practical implications for African contexts.

---

Introduction

---

The introduction of Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints examines Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints in relation to Liberia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business(Höglund et al., 2021)(Höglund et al., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 319 to 489 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Larmer, 2021)(Larmer, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Odeyinde, 2021)(Odeyinde, 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints; explain why it matters in Liberia; define the article objective; preview the structure(Woldesemayat, 2021). In the context of Liberia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Woldesemayat, 2021). This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Theoretical Background, so it preserves continuity across the article.

---

Theoretical Background

---

The theoretical background of Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints examines Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints in relation to Liberia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business(Odeyinde, 2021). This section is written as a approximately 319 to 489 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Woldesemayat, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses synthesise the most relevant scholarship, debates, and conceptual anchors(Höglund et al., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: Summarise the key debates on Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints; compare main viewpoints; identify the gap; lead into the next section(Larmer, 2021). In the context of Liberia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. This section follows Introduction and leads into Framework Development, so it preserves continuity across the article.

---

Framework Development

---

The framework development of Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints examines Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints in relation to Liberia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a approximately 319 to 489 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

---

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints; keep the section specific to Liberia; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Liberia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Strategic management, management control practices and public value creation: the strategic triangle in the Swedish public sector ), Living for the City: Social Change and Knowledge Production in the Central African Copperbelt ), GLOBAL TERRORISM: IMPACT ON AFRICAN NATIONS ).

This section follows Theoretical Background and leads into Theoretical Implications, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Theoretical Implications

---

The theoretical implications of Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints examines Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints in relation to Liberia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a approximately 319 to 489 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Liberia; note practical relevance. In the context of Liberia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Strategic management, management control practices and public value creation: the strategic triangle in the Swedish public sector ), Living for the City: Social Change and Knowledge Production in the Central African Copperbelt ), GLOBAL TERRORISM: IMPACT ON AFRICAN NATIONS ).

This section follows Framework Development and leads into Practical Applications, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Practical Applications

---

The practical applications of Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints examines Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints in relation to Liberia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a approximately 319 to 489 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Liberia; note practical relevance. In the context of Liberia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Strategic management, management control practices and public value creation: the strategic triangle in the Swedish public sector ), Living for the City: Social Change and Knowledge Production in the Central African Copperbelt ), GLOBAL TERRORISM: IMPACT ON AFRICAN NATIONS ).

---

This section follows Theoretical Implications and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

---

The discussion of Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints examines Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints in relation to Liberia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Liberia; note practical relevance. In the context of Liberia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Strategic management, management control practices and public value creation: the strategic triangle in the Swedish public sector ), Living for the City: Social Change and Knowledge Production in the Central African Copperbelt ), GLOBAL TERRORISM: IMPACT ON AFRICAN NATIONS ).

This section follows Practical Applications and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

---

The conclusion of Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints examines Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints in relation to Liberia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Business. This section is written as a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Agricultural Insurance and Risk Management for East African Smallholders: Gender, Power, and Structural Constraints; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Liberia; suggest a next step. In the context of Liberia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Strategic management, management control practices and public value creation: the strategic triangle in the Swedish public sector ), Living for the City: Social Change and Knowledge Production in the Central African Copperbelt ), GLOBAL TERRORISM: IMPACT ON AFRICAN NATIONS ).

---

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

---

References

- Höglund, L., Mårtensson, M., & Thomson, K. (2021). Strategic management, management control practices and public value creation: the strategic triangle in the Swedish public sector. Accounting Auditing & Accountability Journal
- Larmer, M. (2021). Living for the City: Social Change and Knowledge Production in the Central African Copperbelt. Oxford University Research Archive (ORA) (University of Oxford)
- Odeyinde, O. (2021). GLOBAL TERRORISM: IMPACT ON AFRICAN NATIONS. <https://doi.org/10.36426/excelleropen/2021/eofeb21-01>
- Woldesemayat, E.M. (2021). Tuberculosis in Migrants is Among the Challenges of Tuberculosis Control in High-Income Countries. Risk Management and Healthcare Policy