

Practices in Togo: Comparative Policy Implications of Business Research in Africa

Timoleon Effoso¹

¹ University of Lomé

Published: 19 May 2000 | Received: 31 December 1999 | Accepted: 28 March 2000

Correspondence: teffoso@gmail.com

DOI: 10.5281/zenodo.18721274

Author notes

Timoleon Effoso is affiliated with University of Lomé and focuses on Business research in Africa.

Abstract

Business research in Africa has grown significantly, but there is a need to understand how policies affect business practices across different countries. The research draws from secondary data sources including government reports, academic journals, and industry surveys. Comparative analysis is conducted using a mixed-method approach combining quantitative and qualitative insights. Togolese businesses exhibit distinct practices influenced by local economic conditions and regulatory environments, particularly in areas such as taxation compliance and labour laws. The findings underscore the importance of tailored policy interventions that address specific challenges faced by Togolese businesses. Policy makers should consider implementing targeted reforms to facilitate business growth and stability in Togo.

Keywords: Sub-Saharan, African, Socioeconomic, Predetermining, Analytical

ABSTRACT-ONLY PUBLICATION

This is an abstract-only publication. The complete research paper with full methodology, results, discussion, and references is available upon request.

✉ REQUEST FULL PAPER

Email: info@parj.africa

Request your copy of the full paper today!

SUBMIT YOUR RESEARCH

Are you a researcher in Africa? We welcome your submissions!

Join our community of African scholars and share your groundbreaking work.

Submit at: app.parj.africa

Scan to visit app.parj.africa

Open Access Scholarship from PARJ

Empowering African Research | Advancing Global Knowledge