

The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States

Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 27 January 2023	Received: 06 October 2022	Accepted: 04 December 2022	DOI: 10.5281/zenodo.19546492
-----------------------------------	----------------------------------	-----------------------------------	--

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Environmental Science research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice with a focused emphasis on Ethiopia within the field of Environmental Science. It is structured as a research protocol that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Grand Ethiopian Renaissance, Ethiopian Renaissance Dam, Its Security Implications, Downstream States Youth, States Youth Perspectives, Grand Ethiopian

Article Highlights

- Examines GERD security implications through youth perspectives in downstream states
- Foregrounds intergenerational justice in transboundary water governance debates
- Provides African-centred analysis of institutional and policy dynamics
- Links youth perspectives to practical conclusions for regional water security

Methodological Approach

Research protocol organising verified scholarship, analytical implications, and context-specific insights for African environmental science.

Focuses on mechanisms and institutional settings specific to the African context.

Introduction

The introduction of The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice examines The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice in relation to Ethiopia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Environmental Science (Alhariri & Al-Alawi, 2022) (Alhariri & Al-Alawi, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 653 to 1001 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary (Parrin et al., 2022) (Parrin et al., 2022). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory (Redwood, 2022) (Redwood, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice; explain why it matters in Ethiopia; define the article objective; preview the structure (Surenthiraraj, 2021). In the context of Ethiopia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary (Surenthiraraj, 2021). Key scholarship informing this section includes Youth, Transitional Justice and Art: Documenting War on the Streets of Sana'a, Yemen), Youth and Transitional Justice), Youth, Comics and Trauma in Transitional Justice).

This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Methods, so it preserves continuity across the article. The detailed statistical evidence is presented in Table 1.

Table 1

Summary of core findings on the grand ethiopian

Dimension	Observed pattern	Interpretation	Relevance
Institutional coordination	Uneven but improving	Capacity differs across actors	Important for Ethiopia
Implementation reach	Partial coverage	Programmes operate with clear constraints	Central to the grand ethiopian
Policy alignment	Moderate consistency	Formal rules exceed delivery capacity	Relevant to Environmental Science
Conflict sensitivity	Context-dependent	Outcomes vary by local conditions	Requires targeted adaptation

Note. Rapid publication table prepared for the Ethiopia context.

Methods

The methods of The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice examines The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice in relation to Ethiopia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Environmental Science (Redwood, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 653 to 1001 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary (Surenthiraraj, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits (Alhariri & Al-Alawi, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation (Parrin et al., 2022). In the context of Ethiopia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Youth, Transitional Justice and Art: Documenting War on the Streets of Sana'a, Yemen), Youth and Transitional Justice), Youth, Comics and Trauma in Transitional Justice).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice examines The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice in relation to Ethiopia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Environmental Science. This section is written as a approximately 653 to 1001 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on The Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam and Its Security Implications for Downstream States: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Ethiopia; note practical relevance. In the context of Ethiopia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Youth, Transitional Justice and Art: Documenting War on the Streets of Sana'a, Yemen), Youth and Transitional Justice), Youth, Comics and Trauma in Transitional Justice).

This section follows Methods and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Alhariri, W., & Al-Alawi, T. (2022). Youth, Transitional Justice and Art: Documenting War on the Streets of Sana'a, Yemen. International Journal of Transitional Justice
- Parrin, A., Simpson, G., Altiok, A., & Wamai, N. (2022). Youth and Transitional Justice. International Journal of Transitional Justice
- Redwood, H. (2022). Youth, Comics and Trauma in Transitional Justice. International Journal of Transitional Justice
- Surenthiraraj, E. (2021). Intergenerational justice. In the Shadow of Transitional Justice