ABSTRACT

This article examines Governance and Economic Performance: Cross-Country Evidence from Sub-Saharan Africa: Youth Perspectives and Intergenerational Justice with a focused emphasis on Uganda within the field of Sociology. It is structured as a survey research article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Economic Performance Cross-Country, Performance Cross-Country Evidence, Sub-Saharan Africa Youth, Africa Youth Perspectives, Economic Performance, Performance Cross-Country

Article Highlights

- Cross-country analysis of governance and economic performance in Sub-Saharan Africa
- Centers youth perspectives and intergenerational justice in policy discussions
- Employs survey methodology with statistical sampling for robust evidence
- Provides practical conclusions linked to institutional and policy dynamics

Methodological Note

Sample size determined using standard proportion formula: $n = (Z^2 \times p(1-p)) / d^2$, ensuring statistical validity for cross-country comparisons.

This article synthesizes African-centred evidence with practical implications for governance and economic policy.
