

Enforcement Mechanisms in Kenyan Domestic Courts: A Survey of Human Rights Law Compliance

Mary Jones
Pwani University

Correspondence: mjones@outlook.com

Enforcement
Mechanisms in Kenyan
Domestic Courts:

DOI
10.5281/zenodo.18932
427
48

Received 08 January 2011

Accepted 13 February 2011

Abstract

The enforcement of human rights law in domestic courts is crucial for ensuring that legal protections are effectively applied to individuals within Kenyan communities. The research employs a quantitative survey of judges, lawyers, and court officials in selected regions across Kenya, complemented by qualitative interviews to explore perspectives on enforcement challenges and successes. A notable finding is the significant variation in compliance rates among courts, with some demonstrating higher efficacy in applying human rights laws compared to others. The study highlights the importance of judicial training and resource allocation for better human rights law enforcement. Enhanced training programmes and improved access to resources are recommended to support enhanced enforcement mechanisms.

Keywords: Kenya, Human Rights Law, Jurisdictional Limits, Case Studies, Legal Framework, Compliance Mechanisms, Governance Structures

ABSTRACT-ONLY PUBLICATION

This is an abstract-only publication. The complete research paper with full methodology, results, discussion, and references is available upon request.

✉ REQUEST FULL PAPER

Email: info@parj.africa

Request your copy of the full paper today!

SUBMIT YOUR RESEARCH

Are you a researcher in Africa? We welcome your submissions!

Join our community of African scholars and share your groundbreaking work.

Submit at: app.parj.africa

Scan to visit app.parj.africa

Open Access Scholarship from PARJ

Empowering African Research | Advancing Global Knowledge