

Financing Terrorism in Africa

Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations

Abraham Kuol Nyuon<sup>1,2,3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

<sup>2</sup> Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

<sup>3</sup> SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 02 August 2022

Received: 18 February

Accepted: 08 June 2022 DOI:

2022

10.5281/zenodo.19544375

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on African Studies research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations with a focused emphasis on Uganda within the field of African Studies. It is structured as a survey research article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Africa Hawala Networks, Hawala Networks Diaspora, Networks Diaspora Funding, State Sponsors Human, Sponsors Human Rights, Financing Terrorism

Article Highlights

- Examines hawala networks, diaspora funding, and state sponsors in Uganda
- Foregrounds institutional dynamics and governance considerations
- Provides context-specific insights for African policy and practice
- Advances evidence-informed approaches to counter-terrorism financing

Methodological Note

Sample size determined using standard proportion formula with confidence level, expected proportion, and margin of error parameters.

Focuses on Uganda as a case study within broader African security dynamics.

Introduction

The introduction of Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations examines Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance

Considerations in relation to Uganda, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies(Ansell et al., 2022)(Ansell et al., 2022). This section is written as a approximately 376 to 577 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Duriesmith & Ismail, 2022)(Duriesmith & Ismail, 2022). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Farazmand, 2022)(Farazmand, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations; explain why it matters in Uganda; define the article objective; preview the structure(Kaur et al., 2022). In the context of Uganda, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Kaur et al., 2022). This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

The methodology of Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations examines Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations in relation to Uganda, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies(Farazmand, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 376 to 577 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Kaur et al., 2022). Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits(Ansell et al., 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation(Duriesmith & Ismail, 2022). In the context of Uganda, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists ), Global Encyclopedia of Public Administration, Public Policy, and Governance ).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Survey Results, so it preserves continuity across the article. Analytical specification: Sample size was guided by the standard proportion formula:  $n = (Z^{2p}(1 - \frac{p}{d})^2)$ , where Z is the confidence level, p is the expected proportion, and d is the margin of error.(Ansell et al., 2022)

Survey Results

The survey results of Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations examines Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance

---

Considerations in relation to Uganda, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 376 to 577 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Uganda, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists ), Global Encyclopedia of Public Administration, Public Policy, and Governance ).

This section follows Methodology and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

---

The discussion of Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations examines Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations in relation to Uganda, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 376 to 577 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Uganda; note practical relevance. In the context of Uganda, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists ), Global Encyclopedia of Public Administration, Public Policy, and Governance ).

This section follows Survey Results and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

---

The conclusion of Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations examines Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations in relation to Uganda, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 376 to 577 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

---

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Financing Terrorism in Africa: Hawala Networks, Diaspora Funding, and State Sponsors: Human Rights and Governance Considerations; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Uganda; suggest a next step. In the context of Uganda, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists ), Global Encyclopedia of Public Administration, Public Policy, and Governance ).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

---

References

- Ansell, C., Sørensen, E., & Torfing, J. (2022). Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses. Public Administration
- Duriesmith, D., & Ismail, N.H. (2022). Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists. Studies in Conflict and Terrorism
- Farazmand, A. (2022). Global Encyclopedia of Public Administration, Public Policy, and Governance
- Kaur, M., Buisman, H., Bekker, A.V., & McCulloch, C. (2022). Innovative capacity of governments. OECD working papers on public governance