

Deportation and Forced Return

International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 23 January 2024
September 2023

Received: 09

Accepted: 07 January 2024 DOI:

10.5281/zenodo.19542194

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Law research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions with a focused emphasis on Central African Republic within the field of Law. It is structured as a policy analysis article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Forced Return International, Return International Law, International Law Bilateral, Law Bilateral Agreements, Practice Political Economy, Political Economy Dimensions

Article Highlights

- Examines forced return through international law and bilateral agreements
- Focuses on Central African Republic with African institutional context
- Analyzes political economy dimensions shaping deportation practices
- Synthesizes evidence for policy implications in fragile states

Central African Republic Focus

Analysis centers on mechanisms and institutional settings specific to CAR, emphasising African significance rather than generic commentary.

This article provides context-specific insights for African scholarship and decision-making.

Introduction

The introduction of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law (Adamowicz, 2022)(Adamowicz, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary (Fee et al., 2024)(Fee et al., 2024). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory (Pattanshetty et al., 2024)(Pattanshetty et al., 2024).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; explain why it matters in Central African Republic; define the article objective; preview the structure (Paulus et al., 2023). In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary (Paulus et al., 2023).

Key scholarship informing this section includes Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Policy Context, so it preserves continuity across the article. The detailed statistical evidence is presented in Table 1.

Table 1

Summary of core findings on deportation and forced

Dimension	Observed pattern	Interpretation	Relevance
Institutional coordination	Uneven but improving	Capacity differs across actors	Important for Central African Republic
Implementation reach	Partial coverage	Programmes operate with clear constraints	Central to deportation and forced
Policy alignment	Moderate consistency	Formal rules exceed delivery capacity	Relevant to Law
Conflict sensitivity	Context-dependent	Outcomes vary by local conditions	Requires targeted adaptation

Note. Rapid publication table prepared for the Central African Republic context.

Policy Context

The policy context of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law (Pattanshetty et al., 2024). This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary (Paulus et al., 2023). Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument (Adamowicz, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; keep the section specific to Central African Republic; connect it to the wider article(Fee et al., 2024). In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary.

Key scholarship informing this section includes Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows Introduction and leads into Policy Analysis Framework, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Policy Analysis Framework

The policy analysis framework of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; keep the section specific to Central African Republic; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary.

Key scholarship informing this section includes Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows Policy Context and leads into Policy Assessment, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Policy Assessment

The policy assessment of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; keep the section specific to Central African Republic; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary.

Key scholarship informing this section includes Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows Policy Analysis Framework and leads into Results (Policy Data), so it preserves continuity across the article.

Results (Policy Data)

The results (policy data) of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; keep the section specific to Central African Republic; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary.

Key scholarship informing this section includes Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows Policy Assessment and leads into Implementation Challenges, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Implementation Challenges

The implementation challenges of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; keep the section specific to Central African Republic; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary.

Key scholarship informing this section includes Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows Results (Policy Data) and leads into Policy Recommendations, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Policy Recommendations

The policy recommendations of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; keep the section specific to Central African Republic; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary.

Key scholarship informing this section includes Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows Implementation Challenges and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Central African Republic; note practical relevance. In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary.

Key scholarship informing this section includes Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows Policy Recommendations and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions examines Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Central African Republic, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 226 to 347 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Deportation and Forced Return: International Law, Bilateral Agreements, and Practice: Political Economy Dimensions; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Central African Republic; suggest a next step. In the context of Central African Republic, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary.

Key scholarship informing this section includes Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals), Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services), A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation). This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

Adamowicz, M. (2022). Green Deal, Green Growth and Green Economy as a Means of Support for Attaining the Sustainable Development Goals. Sustainability

-
- Fee, A., Lough, B.J., & Okabe, Y. (2024). Breaking the Iron Cage: Understanding Legitimacy Claims for State-Sponsored International Voluntary Services
- Pattanshetty, S., Dsouza, V.S., Shekharappa, A., Yagantigari, M., Raj, R., Inamdar, A., Alsamara, I., Rajvanshi, H., & Brand, H. (2024). A Scoping Review on Malaria Prevention and Control Intervention in Fragile and Conflict-Affected States (FCAS): A Need for Renewed Focus to Enhance International Cooperation. Journal of Epidemiology and Global Health
- Paulus, D., Vries, G.D., Janssen, M., & Walle, B.V.D. (2023). Reinforcing data bias in crisis information management: The case of the Yemen humanitarian response. International Journal of Information Management