

Policy Dynamics in Legal Research: An African Perspective on Niger

Ahmedou Wailam¹

¹ Abdou Moumouni University, Niamey

Published: 28 February 2003 | Received: 02 December 2002 | Accepted: 02 February 2003

Correspondence: awailam@hotmail.com

DOI: 10.5281/zenodo.18779039

Author notes

Ahmedou Wailam is affiliated with Abdou Moumouni University, Niamey and focuses on Law research in Africa.

Abstract

This study examines the policy dynamics in legal research within African contexts, focusing on Niger's legal system as a case study. This study employs a qualitative approach, utilising secondary data sources including government reports, academic articles, and interviews with legal experts to analyse the influence of law on policymaking in Niger. The findings indicate that there is a significant correlation between the enactment of new laws and changes in policy direction within governmental sectors such as education and healthcare. Specifically, there has been an increase in legislation aimed at improving access to basic services. This study concludes that legal research plays a crucial role in shaping public policies in Niger, particularly in areas critical for societal development. Given the importance of legal research in policy formulation, it is recommended that policymakers and legal scholars collaborate more closely to ensure that laws are both effective and relevant to current needs.

Keywords: African, Policy, Research, Legal, Context, Qualitative, Dynamics

ABSTRACT-ONLY PUBLICATION

This is an abstract-only publication. The complete research paper with full methodology, results, discussion, and references is available upon request.

✉ REQUEST FULL PAPER

Email: info@parj.africa

Request your copy of the full paper today!

SUBMIT YOUR RESEARCH

Are you a researcher in Africa? We welcome your submissions!

Join our community of African scholars and share your groundbreaking work.

Submit at: app.parj.africa

Scan to visit app.parj.africa

Open Access Scholarship from PARJ

Empowering African Research | Advancing Global Knowledge