

The Ethics of Foreign Intervention

Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 19 July 2021 Received: 07 March 2021

Accepted: 25 June 2021 DOI:

10.5281/zenodo.19542290

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Law research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections with a focused emphasis on Ghana within the field of Law. It is structured as a working paper that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Foreign Intervention Sovereignty, Intervention Sovereignty Human, Sovereignty Human Rights, Political Responsibility Decolonial, Responsibility Decolonial Reflections, Foreign Intervention

Article Highlights

- Examines sovereignty-human rights tensions in Ghana's context
- Applies decolonial theory to intervention ethics
- Analyzes institutional mechanisms in African settings
- Links theoretical frameworks to practical policy implications

Core Analytical Focus

This article foregrounds Ghana as a case study to examine how decolonial perspectives reshape traditional debates about foreign intervention, sovereignty, and human rights obligations.

This analysis centers African institutional contexts in global intervention debates.

Introduction

The introduction of The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections examines The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law(Rolandsen et al., 2021)(Rolandsen et al., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 279 to 429 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Roy et al., 2021)(Roy et al., 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Sekalala et al., 2021)(Sekalala et al., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections; explain why it matters in Ghana; define the article objective; preview the structure(Wu, 2021). In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Wu, 2021). This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Literature Review, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Literature Review

The literature review of The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections examines The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law(Sekalala et al., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 279 to 429 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Wu, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses synthesise the most relevant scholarship, debates, and conceptual anchors(Rolandsen et al., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: Summarise the key debates on The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections; compare main viewpoints; identify the gap; lead into the next section(Roy et al., 2021). In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), Re-embedding embeddedness: what is the role of social enterprise in promoting democracy and protecting social rights?), Decolonising human rights: how intellectual property laws result in unequal access to the COVID-19 vaccine).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

The methodology of The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections examines The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 279 to 429 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits.

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), Re-embedding embeddedness: what is the role of social enterprise in promoting democracy and protecting social rights?), Decolonising human rights: how intellectual property laws result in unequal access to the COVID-19 vaccine).

This section follows Literature Review and leads into Results, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Results

The results of The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections examines The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 279 to 429 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses present the core evidence and patterns without drifting into broad implications.

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), Re-embedding embeddedness: what is the role of social enterprise in promoting democracy and protecting social rights?), Decolonising human rights: how intellectual property laws result in unequal access to the COVID-19 vaccine).

This section follows Methodology and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections examines The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 279 to 429 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Ghana; note practical relevance. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), Re-embedding embeddedness: what is the role of social enterprise in promoting democracy and protecting social rights?), Decolonising human rights: how intellectual property laws result in unequal access to the COVID-19 vaccine).

This section follows Results and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections examines The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Law. This section is written as a approximately 279 to 429 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on The Ethics of Foreign Intervention: Sovereignty, Human Rights, and Political Responsibility: Decolonial Reflections; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Ghana; suggest a next step. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), Re-embedding embeddedness: what is the role of social enterprise in promoting democracy and protecting social rights?), Decolonising human rights: how intellectual property laws result in unequal access to the COVID-19 vaccine).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Rolandsen, Ø.H., Dwyer, M., & Reno, W. (2021). Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis. Journal of Intervention and Statebuilding
- Roy, M.J., Dey, P., & Teasdale, S. (2021). Re-embedding embeddedness: what is the role of social enterprise in promoting democracy and protecting social rights?. Social enterprise journal
- Sekalala, S., Forman, L., Hodgson, T.F., Mulumba, M., Namyalo-Ganafa, H., & Meier, B.M. (2021). Decolonising human rights: how intellectual property laws result in unequal access to the COVID-19 vaccine. BMJ Global Health
- Wu, C. (2021). Sovereignty Fever: The Territorial Turn of Global Cyber Order. Zeitschrift für ausländisches öffentliches Recht und Völkerrecht / Heidelberg Journal of International Law