

Challenges and Opportunities in Legal Reforms for Post-Conflict Societies in Algeria

Nadia Benali¹, Faten El Kadi^{2,3}, Smail Chaoui^{4,5}, Ahmed Belkacem⁶

¹ Department of Interdisciplinary Studies, Algerian Institute for Agricultural Research (INRAA)

² Department of Advanced Studies, National Agency for Research Development in Health (ANDRS)

³ National Centre for Research in Anthropology, History and Social Sciences (CRASC)

⁴ Department of Interdisciplinary Studies, National Agency for Research Development in Health (ANDRS)

⁵ Algerian Institute for Agricultural Research (INRAA)

⁶ National Agency for Research Development in Health (ANDRS)

Published: 09 September 2001 | Received: 11 May 2001 | Accepted: 15 August 2001

Correspondence: nbenali@gmail.com

DOI: 10.5281/zenodo.18737088

Author notes

Nadia Benali is affiliated with Department of Interdisciplinary Studies, Algerian Institute for Agricultural Research (INRAA) and focuses on Law research in Africa.

Faten El Kadi is affiliated with Department of Advanced Studies, National Agency for Research Development in Health (ANDRS) and focuses on Law research in Africa.

Smail Chaoui is affiliated with Department of Interdisciplinary Studies, National Agency for Research Development in Health (ANDRS) and focuses on Law research in Africa.

Ahmed Belkacem is affiliated with National Agency for Research Development in Health (ANDRS) and focuses on Law research in Africa.

Abstract

Algeria has experienced several post-conflict phases since its independence in , necessitating legal reforms to address challenges and facilitate societal recovery. The analysis is based on a review of existing legal documents and secondary sources focusing on post-conflict interventions in Algeria. A notable finding is the significant disparity between formal legal frameworks and practical implementation in resolving disputes related to property restitution among conflict-affected communities, with approximately 30% of affected families facing unresolved issues. Legal reforms are essential for enhancing justice and reconciliation processes in post-conflict Algeria, particularly concerning property rights and compensation mechanisms. The paper recommends the establishment of specialized courts dedicated to post-conflict disputes and the development of mediation programmes involving community leaders.

Keywords: Post-Carlstrian, Decolonization, Human Rights, Transitional Justice, Legal Pluralism, Restorative Practices, Africanization

ABSTRACT-ONLY PUBLICATION

This is an abstract-only publication. The complete research paper with full methodology, results, discussion, and references is available upon request.

✉ REQUEST FULL PAPER

Email: info@parj.africa

Request your copy of the full paper today!

SUBMIT YOUR RESEARCH

Are you a researcher in Africa? We welcome your submissions!

Join our community of African scholars and share your groundbreaking work.

Submit at: app.parj.africa

Scan to visit app.parj.africa

Open Access Scholarship from PARJ

Empowering African Research | Advancing Global Knowledge