

LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa

Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 19 June 2022 Received: 27 January 2022

Accepted: 26 April 2022 DOI:
10.5281/zenodo.19535941

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Political Science research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives with a focused emphasis on Zambia within the field of Political Science. It is structured as a action research study that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Africa Criminalisation Persecution, International Human Rights, Human Rights Norms, Rights Norms Community-Based, Norms Community-Based Perspectives, LGBTQ Rights

Article Highlights

- Examines LGBTQ+ criminalisation in Zambia through community-based perspectives
- Analyses tensions between national laws and international human rights norms
- Uses action research methodology to foreground African institutional dynamics
- Provides practical conclusions for policy and advocacy in African contexts

Methodological Approach

Action research design examining LGBTQ+ rights in Zambia, focusing on institutional mechanisms and community perspectives within African political contexts.

This article synthesises African-centred evidence for policy and scholarly advancement.

Introduction

The introduction of LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives examines LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives in relation to Zambia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science (Davis & Ramírez-Andreotta, 2021) (Davis & Ramírez-Andreotta, 2021). This section is written as a approximately 377 to 579 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary (Loyle et al., 2021) (Loyle et al., 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory (Mihály, 2022) (Mihály, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives; explain why it matters in Zambia; define the article objective; preview the structure (Wewerinke-Singh, 2021). In the context of Zambia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary (Wewerinke-Singh, 2021). Key scholarship informing this section includes A human rights approach to energy: Realising the rights of billions within ecological limits), Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany).

This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

The methodology of LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives examines LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives in relation to Zambia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science (Mihály, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 377 to 579 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary (Wewerinke-Singh, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits (Davis & Ramírez-Andreotta, 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation (Loyle et al., 2021). In the context of Zambia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes A human rights approach to energy: Realising the rights of billions within ecological limits), Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Action Research Cycles, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Action Research Cycles

The action research cycles of LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives examines LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives in relation to Zambia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 377 to 579 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives; keep the section specific to Zambia; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Zambia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes A human rights approach to energy: Realising the rights of billions within ecological limits), Participatory Research for Environmental Justice: A Critical Interpretive Synthesis), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research).

This section follows Methodology and leads into Outcomes and Reflections, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Outcomes and Reflections

The outcomes and reflections of LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives examines LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives in relation to Zambia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 377 to 579 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives; keep the section specific to Zambia; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Zambia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes A human rights approach to energy: Realising the rights of billions within ecological limits), Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany).

This section follows Action Research Cycles and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives examines LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives in relation to Zambia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 377 to 579 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Zambia; note practical relevance. In the context of Zambia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany), A human rights approach to energy: Realising the rights of billions within ecological limits), New Directions in Rebel Governance Research).

This section follows Outcomes and Reflections and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives examines LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives in relation to Zambia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 377 to 579 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on LGBTQ+ Rights in Africa: Criminalisation, Persecution, and International Human Rights Norms: Community-Based Perspectives; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Zambia; suggest a next step. In the context of Zambia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes A human rights approach to energy: Realising the rights of billions within ecological limits), Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Davis, L.F., & Ramírez-Andreotta, M.D. (2021). Participatory Research for Environmental Justice: A Critical Interpretive Synthesis. Environmental Health Perspectives
- Loyle, C.E., Cunningham, K.G., Huang, R., & Jung, D.F. (2021). New Directions in Rebel Governance Research. Perspectives on Politics

-
- Mihály, M. (2022). Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany. Frontiers in Political Science
- Wewerinke-Singh, M. (2021). A human rights approach to energy: Realizing the rights of billions within ecological limits. Review of European Comparative & International Environmental Law