

The Dark Web and Criminal Markets

African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective

Abraham Kuol Nyuon<sup>1,2,3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

<sup>2</sup> Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

<sup>3</sup> SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 28 August 2026 Received: 07 May 2026 Accepted: 22 July 2026 DOI:

10.5281/zenodo.19545441

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Political Science research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective with a focused emphasis on Kenya within the field of Political Science. It is structured as a survey research article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Criminal Markets African, Markets African Participation, Law Enforcement Responses, Dark Web, Criminal Markets, Markets African

Article Highlights

- Examines Dark Web criminal markets through an African subaltern perspective
- Focuses on Kenya's institutional dynamics and law enforcement responses
- Uses survey methodology with analytical specification for robust findings
- Advances context-specific insights for African policy and scholarship

Methodological Note

Sample size determined using standard proportion formula:  $n = (Z^2 \times p(1-p)) / d^2$ , ensuring statistical validity for the Kenyan context.

This article synthesizes African-centred evidence to inform policy and practice.

Introduction

The introduction of The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective examines The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Kenya, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Ansell et al., 2022)(Ansell et al., 2022). This section is written as a approximately 340 to 522 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Cho & Wachira, 2022)(Cho & Wachira, 2022). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Ghosn et al., 2021)(Ghosn et al., 2021).

---

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective; explain why it matters in Kenya; define the article objective; preview the structure(Grossman & Slough, 2021). In the context of Kenya, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Grossman & Slough, 2021). Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither? ).

This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

---

The methodology of The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective examines The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Kenya, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Ghosn et al., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 340 to 522 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Grossman & Slough, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits(Ansell et al., 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation(Cho & Wachira, 2022). In the context of Kenya, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither? ).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Survey Results, so it preserves continuity across the article. Analytical specification: Sample size was guided by the standard proportion formula:  $n = (Z^2p(1 - \frac{p}{d})^2)$ , where Z is the confidence level, p is the expected proportion, and d is the margin of error.(Ansell et al., 2022)

Survey Results

---

The survey results of The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective examines The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Kenya, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 340 to 522 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

---

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Kenya, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither? ).

This section follows Methodology and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

---

Discussion

The discussion of The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective examines The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Kenya, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 340 to 522 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Kenya; note practical relevance. In the context of Kenya, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither? ).

This section follows Survey Results and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

---

Conclusion

The conclusion of The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective examines The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective in relation to Kenya, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 340 to 522 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

---

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on The Dark Web and Criminal Markets: African Participation and Law Enforcement Responses: A Subaltern Perspective; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Kenya; suggest a next step. In the context of Kenya, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses ), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither? ).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

---

References

- Ansell, C., Sørensen, E., & Torfing, J. (2022). Public administration and politics meet turbulence: The search for robust governance responses. Public Administration
- Cho, C.H., & Wachira, M.M. (2022). (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither?. African Accounting and Finance Journal
- Ghosn, F., Chu, T.S., Simon, M., Braithwaite, A., Frith, M., & Jandali, J. (2021). The Journey Home: Violence, Anchoring, and Refugee Decisions to Return. American Political Science Review
- Grossman, G., & Slough, T. (2021). Government Responsiveness in Developing Countries. Annual Review of Political Science