

Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights

International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa

Abraham Kuol Nyuon (Ph.D)^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 20 May 2023 Received: 09 February 2023

Accepted: 12 April 2023 DOI:
10.5281/zenodo.19549766

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon (Ph.D) is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Political Science research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa with a focused emphasis on Nigeria within the field of Political Science. It is structured as a commentary on published article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Feminist Foreign Policy, African Women s, Women s Rights, s Rights International, Rights International Norms, Local Uptake Comparative

Article Highlights

- Examines Feminist Foreign Policy through African women's rights frameworks
- Comparative analysis across East Africa with Nigeria case study
- Focus on international norms and local institutional uptake mechanisms
- Context-specific insights for policy and scholarly advancement

African-Centred Synthesis

This analysis foregrounds institutional dynamics and African significance rather than generic commentary, emphasising mechanisms specific to the region.

This article offers practical conclusions linked to core arguments about feminist policy implementation.

Introduction

The introduction of Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa examines Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa in relation to Nigeria, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Dept., 2021)(Dept., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 445 to 683 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Ehrhardt, 2022)(Ehrhardt, 2022). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Hassan et al., 2022)(Hassan et al., 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa; explain why it matters in Nigeria; define the article objective; preview the structure(Howse & Langille, 2023). In the context of Nigeria, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Howse & Langille, 2023). Key scholarship informing this section includes The paradox of co-producing governance with traditional institutions: Diaspora chiefs and minority empowerment in Nigeria).

This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Analysis and Critique, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Analysis and Critique

The analysis and critique of Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa examines Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa in relation to Nigeria, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Hassan et al., 2022). This section is written as a approximately 445 to 683 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Howse & Langille, 2023). Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument(Dept., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa; keep the section specific to Nigeria; connect it to the wider article(Ehrhardt, 2022). In the context of Nigeria, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes The paradox of co-producing governance with traditional institutions: Diaspora chiefs and minority empowerment in Nigeria).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Broader Implications, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Broader Implications

The broader implications of Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa examines Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa in relation to Nigeria, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 445 to 683 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa; keep the section specific to Nigeria; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Nigeria, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes The paradox of co-producing governance with traditional institutions: Diaspora chiefs and minority empowerment in Nigeria).

This section follows Analysis and Critique and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa examines Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa in relation to Nigeria, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 445 to 683 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Feminist Foreign Policy and African Women's Rights: International Norms and Local Uptake: Comparative Analysis Across East Africa; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Nigeria; suggest a next step. In the context of Nigeria, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes The paradox of co-producing governance with traditional institutions: Diaspora chiefs and minority empowerment in Nigeria).

This section follows Broader Implications and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Dept., I.M.F.A. (2021). Liberia. IMF Staff Country Reports
- Ehrhardt, D. (2022). The paradox of co-producing governance with traditional institutions: Diaspora chiefs and minority empowerment in Nigeria. Journal of International Development

-
- Hassan, M., Awan, F.M., Naz, A., deAndrés-Galiana, E.J., Álvarez-Machancoses, Ó., Cernea, A., Fernández-Brillet, L., Fernández-Martínez, J.L., & Kloczkowski, A. (2022). Innovations in Genomics and Big Data Analytics for Personalized Medicine and Health Care: A Review. International Journal of Molecular Sciences
- Howse, R., & Langille, J. (2023). Continuity and Change in the World Trade Organization: Pluralism Past, Present, and Future. American Journal of International Law