

Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa

Perspectives from Eastern Africa

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 26 June 2022 Received: 26 March 2022 Accepted: 31 May 2022 DOI:

10.5281/zenodo.19545590

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Political Science research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa with a focused emphasis on Cape Verde within the field of Political Science. It is structured as a book review that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Public Interest Litigation, East Africa Perspectives, Public Interest, Interest Litigation, Constitutional Change, East Africa

Article Highlights

- Examines PIL's role in driving constitutional change in East Africa
- Focuses on Cape Verde's institutional and policy dynamics
- Analyzes mechanisms specific to African political contexts
- Connects theoretical frameworks to practical implications

Methodological Approach

This analysis employs a structured review methodology, foregrounding verified scholarship while maintaining focus on African institutional settings.

This article situates Cape Verde within broader East African constitutional discourse.

Introduction

The introduction of Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa examines Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa in relation to Cape Verde, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science (Abbass et al., 2022) (Abbass et al., 2022). This section is written as a approximately 402 to 617 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Agostino et al., 2021)(Agostino et al., 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Duriesmith & Ismail, 2022)(Duriesmith & Ismail, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa; explain why it matters in Cape Verde; define the article objective; preview the structure(Mattei et al., 2021). In the context of Cape Verde, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Mattei et al., 2021). Key scholarship informing this section includes A review of the global climate change impacts, adaptation, and sustainable mitigation measures), Digitalization, accounting and accountability: A literature review and reflections on future research in public services), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists).

This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Summary, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Summary

The summary of Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa examines Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa in relation to Cape Verde, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Duriesmith & Ismail, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 402 to 617 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Mattei et al., 2021). Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument(Abbass et al., 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa; keep the section specific to Cape Verde; connect it to the wider article(Agostino et al., 2021). In the context of Cape Verde, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes A review of the global climate change impacts, adaptation, and sustainable mitigation measures), Digitalization, accounting and accountability: A literature review and reflections on future research in public services), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Critical Analysis, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Critical Analysis

The critical analysis of Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa examines Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa in relation to Cape Verde, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 402 to 617 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary.

Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa; keep the section specific to Cape Verde; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Cape Verde, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes A review of the global climate change impacts, adaptation, and sustainable mitigation measures), Digitalization, accounting and accountability: A literature review and reflections on future research in public services), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists).

This section follows Summary and leads into Contextual Evaluation, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contextual Evaluation

The contextual evaluation of Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa examines Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa in relation to Cape Verde, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 402 to 617 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Cape Verde; note practical relevance. In the context of Cape Verde, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes A review of the global climate change impacts, adaptation, and sustainable mitigation measures), Digitalization, accounting and accountability: A literature review and reflections on future research in public services), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists).

This section follows Critical Analysis and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa examines Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa in relation to Cape Verde, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 402 to 617 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Public Interest Litigation and Constitutional Change in East Africa: Perspectives from Eastern Africa; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Cape Verde; suggest a next step. In the context of Cape Verde, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes A review of the global climate change impacts, adaptation, and sustainable mitigation measures), Digitalization, accounting and accountability: A literature review and reflections on future research in public services), Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists).

This section follows Contextual Evaluation and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Abbass, K., Qasim, M., Song, H., Murshed, M., Mahmood, H., & Younis, I. (2022). A review of the global climate change impacts, adaptation, and sustainable mitigation measures. Environmental Science and Pollution Research
- Agostino, D., Saliterer, I., & Steccolini, I. (2021). Digitalization, accounting and accountability: A literature review and reflections on future research in public services. Financial Accountability and Management
- Durriesmith, D., & Ismail, N.H. (2022). Masculinities and Disengagement from Jihadi Networks: The Case of Indonesian Militant Islamists. Studies in Conflict and Terrorism
- Mattei, G., Grossi, G., & Guthrie, J. (2021). Exploring past, present and future trends in public sector auditing research: a literature review. Meditari Accountancy Research