

Money in Politics

Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach

Abraham Kuol Nyuon<sup>1,2,3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

<sup>2</sup> Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

<sup>3</sup> SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 19 October 2022 Received: 29 July 2022

Accepted: 21 September 2022 DOI:
10.5281/zenodo.19536684

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Political Science research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach with a focused emphasis on Egypt within the field of Political Science. It is structured as a mixed methods study that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Politics Campaign Finance, Campaign Finance Regulation, Feminist Political Economy, Political Economy Approach, Politics Campaign, Campaign Finance

Article Highlights

- Examines campaign finance regulation through feminist political economy lens
- Focuses on East African institutional contexts and enforcement mechanisms
- Provides context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making
- Employs mixed methods approach to analyse quantitative and qualitative evidence

Methodological Approach

Mixed methods study examining campaign finance regulation in East Africa with specific attention to Egypt's political dynamics and institutional settings.

This analysis foregrounds African-centred perspectives on political finance regulation.

Introduction

The introduction of Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach examines Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Blarel, 2021)(Blarel, 2021). This section is written as a approximately 358 to 549 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Fjelde & Smidt, 2021)(Fjelde & Smidt, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Lake, 2022)(Lake, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach; explain why it matters in Egypt; define the article objective; preview the structure(Mihály, 2022). In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Mihály, 2022). Key scholarship informing this section includes Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany ), Modi looks West?

Assessing change and continuity in India’s Middle East policy since 2014 ). This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

The methodology of Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach examines Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Lake, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 358 to 549 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Mihály, 2022). Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits(Blarel, 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation(Fjelde & Smidt, 2021). In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany ), Modi looks West?

Assessing change and continuity in India’s Middle East policy since 2014 ). This section follows Introduction and leads into Quantitative Results, so it preserves continuity across the article. Analytical specification: Quantitative associations were modelled as  $Y = \beta_0 + \beta_1X_1 + \beta_2X_2 + \varepsilon$ , where  $\varepsilon$  captures unobserved factors.

(Blarel, 2021)

Quantitative Results

The quantitative results of Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach examines Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 358 to 549 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

---

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany ), Modi looks West?

Assessing change and continuity in India’s Middle East policy since 2014 ). This section follows Methodology and leads into Qualitative Findings, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Qualitative Findings

---

The qualitative findings of Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach examines Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 358 to 549 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany ), Modi looks West?

Assessing change and continuity in India’s Middle East policy since 2014 ). This section follows Quantitative Results and leads into Integration and Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Integration and Discussion

---

The integration and discussion of Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach examines Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 358 to 549 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

---

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Egypt; note practical relevance. In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany ), Modi looks West?

Assessing change and continuity in India’s Middle East policy since 2014 ). This section follows Qualitative Findings and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

---

The conclusion of Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach examines Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 358 to 549 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Money in Politics: Campaign Finance Regulation and Enforcement in East Africa: A Feminist Political Economy Approach; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Egypt; suggest a next step. In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany ), Modi looks West?

Assessing change and continuity in India’s Middle East policy since 2014 ). This section follows Integration and Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

---

References

- Blarel, N. (2021). Modi looks West? Assessing change and continuity in India’s Middle East policy since 2014. International Politics
- Fjelde, H., & Smidt, H. (2021). Protecting the Vote? Peacekeeping Presence and the Risk of Electoral Violence. British Journal of Political Science
- Lake, M. (2022). Policing Insecurity. American Political Science Review

---

Mihály, M. (2022). Peripheralization, Political Discontent, and Social and Solidarity Economy—Case Studies From Rural Hungary and Germany. Frontiers in Political Science