

The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts

Implications for Regional Integration

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 26 August 2021

Received: 13 May 2021

Accepted: 05 August 2021 DOI:

10.5281/zenodo.19539453

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on African Studies research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration with a focused emphasis on Egypt within the field of African Studies. It is structured as a working paper that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: United Nations Security, Nations Security Council, Security Council Resolution, Council Resolution 1325, African Conflicts Implications, United Nations

Article Highlights

- Examines UNSCR 1325 implementation gaps in African conflict zones
- Analyzes implications for regional integration through Egypt's case study
- Identifies institutional dynamics shaping African security frameworks
- Links policy implementation to broader African Studies debates

Core Analytical Focus

This article investigates how UNSCR 1325's implementation in African conflicts, with Egypt as a focal point, affects regional integration mechanisms and institutional responses.

Focuses on institutional and policy dynamics within African security contexts.

Introduction

The introduction of The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration examines The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies(Rathee et al., 2021)(Rathee et al., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 347 to 532 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Rolandsen et al., 2021)(Rolandsen et al., 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Soltani et al., 2021)(Soltani et al., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration; explain why it matters in Egypt; define the article objective; preview the structure(Vosko & Spring, 2021). In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Vosko & Spring, 2021).

Key scholarship informing this section includes On the Design and Implementation of a Blockchain Enabled E-Voting Application Within IoT-Oriented Smart Cities), Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), COVID-19 Outbreaks in Canada and the Crisis of Migrant Farmworkers' Social Reproduction: Transnational Labour and the Need for Greater Accountability Among Receiving States). This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Literature Review, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Literature Review

The literature review of The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration examines The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies(Soltani et al., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 347 to 532 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Vosko & Spring, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses synthesise the most relevant scholarship, debates, and conceptual anchors(Rathee et al., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: Summarise the key debates on The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration; compare main viewpoints; identify the gap; lead into the next section(Rolandsen et al., 2021). In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), On the Design and Implementation of a Blockchain Enabled E-Voting Application Within IoT-Oriented Smart Cities), A Survey of Self-Sovereign Identity Ecosystem).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

The methodology of The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration examines The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 347 to 532 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits.

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation. In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), On the Design and Implementation of a Blockchain Enabled E-Voting Application Within IoT-Oriented Smart Cities), A Survey of Self-Sovereign Identity Ecosystem).

This section follows Literature Review and leads into Results, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Results

The results of The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration examines The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 347 to 532 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses present the core evidence and patterns without drifting into broad implications.

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes On the Design and Implementation of a Blockchain Enabled E-Voting Application Within IoT-Oriented Smart Cities), Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis).

This section follows Methodology and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration examines The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 347 to 532 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Egypt; note practical relevance. In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis), On the Design and Implementation of a Blockchain Enabled E-Voting Application Within IoT-Oriented Smart Cities), A Survey of Self-Sovereign Identity Ecosystem).

This section follows Results and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration examines The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Egypt, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 347 to 532 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on The United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 and its Implementation in African Conflicts: Implications for Regional Integration; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Egypt; suggest a next step. In the context of Egypt, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes On the Design and Implementation of a Blockchain Enabled E-Voting Application Within IoT-Oriented Smart Cities), Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Rathee, G., Iqbal, R., Waqar, O., & Bashir, A.K. (2021). On the Design and Implementation of a Blockchain Enabled E-Voting Application Within IoT-Oriented Smart Cities. IEEE Access
- Rolandsen, Ø.H., Dwyer, M., & Reno, W. (2021). Security Force Assistance to Fragile States: A Framework of Analysis. Journal of Intervention and Statebuilding

-
- Soltani, R., Nguyen, U.T., & An, A. (2021). A Survey of Self-Sovereign Identity Ecosystem. Security and Communication Networks
- Vosko, L.F., & Spring, C. (2021). COVID-19 Outbreaks in Canada and the Crisis of Migrant Farmworkers' Social Reproduction: Transnational Labour and the Need for Greater Accountability Among Receiving States. Journal of International Migration and Integration / Revue de l'integration et de la migration internationale