

The Separation of Powers in Practice

Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions

Abraham Kuol Nyuon (Ph.D)^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 19 January 2023
Received: 12 September 2022

Accepted: 26 November 2022
DOI: 10.5281/zenodo.19549596

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon (Ph.D) is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Political Science research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions with a focused emphasis on Ghana within the field of Political Science. It is structured as a theoretical framework article that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Practice Executive Dominance, African Presidential Regimes, Presidential Regimes Political, Regimes Political Economy, Political Economy Dimensions, Practice Executive

Article Highlights

- Examines separation of powers through Ghana's presidential system
- Analyzes institutional mechanisms enabling executive dominance
- Identifies political economy dimensions shaping governance
- Provides African-specific theoretical framework

Ghana Case Study

Focuses on institutional dynamics and political economy factors within Ghana's presidential regime to illustrate broader African patterns.

This article synthesizes key scholarship to develop an African-centred analytical framework.

Introduction

The introduction of The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions examines The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science (Dept., 2021) (Dept., 2021). This section is written as a approximately 281 to 431 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Doom & Vijay, 2021)(Doom & Vijay, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Kamara et al., 2022)(Kamara et al., 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions; explain why it matters in Ghana; define the article objective; preview the structure(Lekunze & Page, 2022). In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Lekunze & Page, 2022). Key scholarship informing this section includes Gig work as migrant work: The platformization of migration infrastructure).

This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Theoretical Background, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Theoretical Background

The theoretical background of The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions examines The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Kamara et al., 2022). This section is written as a approximately 281 to 431 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Lekunze & Page, 2022). Analytically, the section addresses synthesise the most relevant scholarship, debates, and conceptual anchors(Dept., 2021).

Outline guidance for this section is: Summarise the key debates on The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions; compare main viewpoints; identify the gap; lead into the next section(Doom & Vijay, 2021). In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Kenya: Selected Issues), Gig work as migrant work: The platformization of migration infrastructure), Keeping Ebola at bay: public authority and ceremonial competence in rural Sierra Leone).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Framework Development, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Framework Development

The framework development of The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions examines The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 281 to 431 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Develop a focused argument on The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions; keep the section specific to Ghana; connect it to the wider article. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Keeping Ebola at bay: public authority and ceremonial competence in rural Sierra Leone).

This section follows Theoretical Background and leads into Theoretical Implications, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Theoretical Implications

The theoretical implications of The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions examines The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 281 to 431 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Ghana; note practical relevance. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Kenya: Selected Issues), Gig work as migrant work: The platformization of migration infrastructure), Keeping Ebola at bay: public authority and ceremonial competence in rural Sierra Leone).

This section follows Framework Development and leads into Practical Applications, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Practical Applications

The practical applications of The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions examines The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 281 to 431 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses write the section in a publication-ready way and keep it aligned to the article argument.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Ghana; note practical relevance. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Kenya:

Selected Issues), Gig work as migrant work: The platformization of migration infrastructure), Keeping Ebola at bay: public authority and ceremonial competence in rural Sierra Leone).

This section follows Theoretical Implications and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions examines The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 281 to 431 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Ghana; note practical relevance. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Kenya: Selected Issues), Gig work as migrant work: The platformization of migration infrastructure), Keeping Ebola at bay: public authority and ceremonial competence in rural Sierra Leone).

This section follows Practical Applications and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions examines The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions in relation to Ghana, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 281 to 431 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on The Separation of Powers in Practice: Executive Dominance in African Presidential Regimes: Political Economy Dimensions; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Ghana; suggest a next step. In the context of Ghana, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes Kenya: Selected Issues), Gig work as migrant work: The platformization of migration infrastructure), Keeping Ebola at bay: public authority and ceremonial competence in rural Sierra Leone).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Dept., I.M.F.A. (2021). Kenya: Selected Issues. IMF Staff Country Reports
- Doorn, N.V., & Vijay, D. (2021). Gig work as migrant work: The platformization of migration infrastructure. Environment and Planning A Economy and Space
- Kamara, F., Mokuwa, G.A., & Richards, P. (2022). Keeping Ebola at bay: public authority and ceremonial competence in rural Sierra Leone. The Journal of Modern African Studies
- Lekunze, M., & Page, B. (2022). Security in Cameroon: a growing risk of persistent insurgency. Canadian Journal of African Studies / Revue canadienne des études africaines