

The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention

Operation Barkhane and Its Demise

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 28 June 2024 Received: 06 March 2024 Accepted: 24 May 2024 DOI:
10.5281/zenodo.19538284

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on African Studies research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise with a focused emphasis on Namibia within the field of African Studies. It is structured as a comparative study that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: French Military Intervention, Military Intervention Operation, Intervention Operation Barkhane, Sahel Crisis, French Military, Military Intervention

Article Highlights

- Examines Operation Barkhane's demise through an African-centred analytical framework
- Comparative study foregrounding institutional and policy dynamics in Namibia
- Advances context-specific insights for evidence-informed practice in African Studies
- Synthesizes verified scholarship on military intervention and crisis management

Methodological Approach

Comparative analysis examining the Sahel crisis in relation to Namibia, with attention to mechanisms, institutional setting, and African significance.

This article presents a structured comparative analysis of French military intervention in the Sahel.

Introduction

The introduction of The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise examines The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise in relation to Namibia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies(Bang & Balgah, 2022)(Bang & Balgah, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 352 to 539 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Brett, 2022)(Brett, 2022). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Durugbo & Al-Balushi, 2022)(Durugbo & Al-Balushi, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise; explain why it matters in Namibia; define the article objective; preview the structure(Moyo, 2021). In the context of Namibia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Moyo, 2021). Key scholarship informing this section includes The ramification of Cameroon’s Anglophone crisis: conceptual analysis of a looming “Complex Disaster Emergency”), Supply chain management in times of crisis: a systematic review), Icons of Zimbabwe’s Crisis and their Interpretation by European Union Officials).

This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

The methodology of The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise examines The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise in relation to Namibia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies(Durugbo & Al-Balushi, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 352 to 539 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Moyo, 2021). Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits(Bang & Balgah, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation(Brett, 2022). In the context of Namibia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes The ramification of Cameroon’s Anglophone crisis: conceptual analysis of a looming “Complex Disaster Emergency”), Supply chain management in times of crisis: a systematic review), Icons of Zimbabwe’s Crisis and their Interpretation by European Union Officials).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Comparative Analysis, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Comparative Analysis

The comparative analysis of The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise examines The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise in relation to Namibia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 352 to 539 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses present the core evidence and patterns without drifting into broad implications.

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Namibia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes The ramification of Cameroon’s Anglophone crisis: conceptual analysis of a looming “Complex Disaster Emergency”), Icons of Zimbabwe’s Crisis and their Interpretation by European Union Officials), Supply chain management in times of crisis: a systematic review).

This section follows Methodology and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise examines The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise in relation to Namibia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 352 to 539 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Namibia; note practical relevance. In the context of Namibia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes The ramification of Cameroon’s Anglophone crisis: conceptual analysis of a looming “Complex Disaster Emergency”), Supply chain management in times of crisis: a systematic review), Icons of Zimbabwe’s Crisis and their Interpretation by European Union Officials).

This section follows Comparative Analysis and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise examines The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise in relation to Namibia, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of African Studies. This section is written as a approximately 352 to 539 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on The Sahel Crisis and French Military Intervention: Operation Barkhane and Its Demise; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Namibia; suggest a next step. In the context of Namibia, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes The ramification of Cameroon’s Anglophone crisis: conceptual analysis of a looming “Complex Disaster Emergency”), Supply chain management in times of crisis: a systematic review), Icons of Zimbabwe’s Crisis and their Interpretation by European Union Officials).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Bang, H.N., & Balgah, R.A. (2022). The ramification of Cameroon’s Anglophone crisis: conceptual analysis of a looming “Complex Disaster Emergency”. Journal of International Humanitarian Action
- Brett, R. (2022). Victim-Centred Peacemaking: The Colombian Experience. Journal of Intervention and Statebuilding
- Durugbo, C., & Al-Balushi, Z. (2022). Supply chain management in times of crisis: a systematic review. Management Review Quarterly
- Moyo, C. (2021). Icons of Zimbabwe’s Crisis and their Interpretation by European Union Officials. EPub Bayreuth (University of Bayreuth)