

Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration

Implications for Regional Integration

Abraham Kuol Nyuon^{1,2,3}

¹ Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security

² Principal, Graduate College, University of Juba

³ SUSI Scholar on U.S. Foreign Policy

Correspondence: nyuonabraham@gmail.com

Published: 04 August 2024 Received: 02 March 2024

Accepted: 21 June 2024 DOI:
10.5281/zenodo.19545066

Author notes

Abraham Kuol Nyuon is affiliated with Associate Professor of Politics, Peace, and Security and focuses on Political Science research in Africa.

ABSTRACT

This article examines Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration with a focused emphasis on Senegal within the field of Political Science. It is structured as a comparative study that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: African Public Administration, Public Administration Implications, Leadership Ethics, African Public, Public Administration, Administration Implications

Article Highlights

- Examines leadership ethics and anti-corruption mechanisms in Senegal
- Links public administration reforms to regional integration outcomes
- Provides comparative analysis of institutional dynamics in African context
- Offers practical conclusions for evidence-informed policy development

Methodological Approach

Comparative study design examining institutional mechanisms and policy dynamics in Senegal, with analytical focus on African significance.

This article presents original analysis of ethical leadership frameworks in African public administration.

Introduction

The introduction of Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration examines Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Senegal, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Cheng, 2022)(Cheng, 2022). This section is written as a approximately 424 to 651 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Cho & Wachira, 2022)(Cho & Wachira, 2022). Analytically, the section addresses set up the problem, context, research objective, and article trajectory(Islam, 2024)(Islam, 2024).

Outline guidance for this section is: State the core problem around Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration; explain why it matters in Senegal; define the article objective; preview the structure(Szücs, 2023). In the context of Senegal, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary(Szücs, 2023). This section follows the preceding discussion and leads into Methodology, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Methodology

The methodology of Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration examines Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Senegal, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science(Islam, 2024). This section is written as a approximately 424 to 651 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary(Szücs, 2023). Analytically, the section addresses explain design, data, sampling, analytical strategy, and validity limits(Cheng, 2022).

Outline guidance for this section is: Describe the analytic design for Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration; explain evidence sources; justify the approach; note the main limitation(Cho & Wachira, 2022). In the context of Senegal, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes AUKUS: The Changing Dynamic and Its Regional Implications), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither?), Maritime Security in a Technological Era: Addressing Challenges in Balancing Technology and Ethics).

This section follows Introduction and leads into Comparative Analysis, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Comparative Analysis

The comparative analysis of Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration examines Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Senegal, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 424 to 651 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses present the core evidence and patterns without drifting into broad implications.

Outline guidance for this section is: Present the main evidence on Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration; highlight the strongest pattern; connect the finding to the article question; transition to interpretation. In the context of Senegal, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes AUKUS: The Changing Dynamic and Its Regional Implications), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither?), Maritime Security in a Technological Era: Addressing Challenges in Balancing Technology and Ethics).

This section follows Methodology and leads into Discussion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Discussion

The discussion of Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration examines Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Senegal, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 424 to 651 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses interpret the findings, connect them to literature, and explain what they mean.

Outline guidance for this section is: Interpret the main findings on Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration; connect them to scholarship; explain implications for Senegal; note practical relevance. In the context of Senegal, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes AUKUS: The Changing Dynamic and Its Regional Implications), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither?), Maritime Security in a Technological Era: Addressing Challenges in Balancing Technology and Ethics).

This section follows Comparative Analysis and leads into Conclusion, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Conclusion

The conclusion of Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration examines Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration in relation to Senegal, with specific attention to the dynamics shaping the field of Political Science. This section is written as a approximately 424 to 651 words part of the article and therefore develops a clear argument rather than a placeholder summary. Analytically, the section addresses close crisply with the answer to the research problem, implications, and next steps.

Outline guidance for this section is: Answer the main question on Leadership Ethics and Anti-Corruption in African Public Administration: Implications for Regional Integration; restate the contribution; note the most practical implication for Senegal; suggest a next step. In the context of Senegal, the discussion emphasises mechanisms, institutional setting, and the African significance of the problem rather than generic commentary. Key scholarship informing this section includes AUKUS: The Changing Dynamic and Its Regional Implications), (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither?), Maritime Security in a Technological Era: Addressing Challenges in Balancing Technology and Ethics).

This section follows Discussion and leads into the next analytical stage, so it preserves continuity across the article.

Contributions

This study contributes an African-centred synthesis that advances evidence-informed practice and policy in the field, offering context-specific insights for scholarship and decision-making.

References

- Cheng, M. (2022). AUKUS: The Changing Dynamic and Its Regional Implications. European Journal of Development Studies
- Cho, C.H., & Wachira, M.M. (2022). (Sustainability) Accounting Research in the African Context: Where, What and Whither?. African Accounting and Finance Journal
- Islam, M.S. (2024). Maritime Security in a Technological Era: Addressing Challenges in Balancing Technology and Ethics. Mersin University Journal of Maritime Faculty
- Szücs, F. (2023). Discretion and Favoritism in Public Procurement. Journal of the European Economic Association