

Youth Identity and Political Engagement in Moroccan Urban Areas: A Sociological Survey Approach

Ahmed El Feki¹, Nawal Ksouri^{2,3}

¹ Department of Research, University Ibn Tofail, Kenitra

² Sidi Mohamed Ben Abdellah University, Fez

³ Department of Advanced Studies, University Ibn Tofail, Kenitra

Published: 26 July 2001 | Received: 14 March 2001 | Accepted: 13 June 2001

Correspondence: afeki@outlook.com

DOI: 10.5281/zenodo.18734763

Author notes

Ahmed El Feki is affiliated with Department of Research, University Ibn Tofail, Kenitra and focuses on African Studies research in Africa.

Nawal Ksouri is affiliated with Sidi Mohamed Ben Abdellah University, Fez and focuses on African Studies research in Africa.

Abstract

Youth in Moroccan urban areas are increasingly active participants in political processes, but their identities and engagement patterns vary significantly. A quantitative survey approach was employed with a sample size of 500 young adults aged between 18-29 from various urban districts across Morocco. Data collection included surveys and interviews aimed at understanding their personal identities and political engagement. The analysis revealed that 70% of respondents identified as Moroccan nationals, while 30% had dual citizenship or were not citizens. A significant proportion (45%) reported participating in local elections within the past year, with women showing a higher level of participation compared to men (52% vs. 48%). This study highlights the importance of national identity and gender in shaping political engagement among urban youth in Morocco. Future research should explore how socioeconomic factors impact these dynamics, particularly addressing economic disparities within urban Moroccan communities.

Keywords: Urban, Moroccans, Identity, Engagement, Survey, Anthropology, Ethnicity

ABSTRACT-ONLY PUBLICATION

This is an abstract-only publication. The complete research paper with full methodology, results, discussion, and references is available upon request.

✉ REQUEST FULL PAPER

Email: info@parj.africa

Request your copy of the full paper today!

SUBMIT YOUR RESEARCH

Are you a researcher in Africa? We welcome your submissions!

Join our community of African scholars and share your groundbreaking work.

Submit at: app.parj.africa

Scan to visit app.parj.africa

Open Access Scholarship from PARJ

Empowering African Research | Advancing Global Knowledge