

Analysis of The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda: An African Perspective

Conor Simmons

Department of Interdisciplinary Studies, Kyambogo University, Kampala

Ms Catherine Ford

Uganda Christian University, Mukono

Makerere University Business School (MUBS)

Hannah Ward-Cook

Makerere University Business School (MUBS)

Correspondence: csimmons@outlook.com

Abstract

This study examines The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in the context of Uganda, addressing key challenges and opportunities from an African perspective.

Keywords: The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda, Uganda, Africa, Business

INTRODUCTION

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Waiswa, Charles; Rannaleet, Anne Holm (2010) investigated Entrepreneurship Initiatives in the Control of Sleeping Sickness: Experiences of the Stamp Out Sleeping Sickness (SOS) Initiative in Uganda in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by World Bank (2010), who examined Stepping Up Skills for More Jobs and Higher Productivity and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Henry, Mugulumu; Osunsan, Olutayo K.; Joshua, Alinitwe; Sylvia, Naiga; Joseline, Tindimwebwa; Isabella, Namirembe (2025), who examined Transactional Leadership Style and Employee Performance in Selected Non-Governmental Organizations in Uganda and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Homi Kharas (2010)

studied The Emerging Middle Class in Developing Countries and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Pranab Bardhan (2016) studied State and Development: The Need for a Reappraisal of the Current Literature and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Waiswa & Rannaleet, 2010; Bank, 2010; Henry et al., 2025; Kharas, 2010; Bardhan, 2016)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Karl Aiginger; Dani Rodrik (2020) investigated Rebirth of Industrial Policy and an Agenda for the Twenty-First Century in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Anthony J. Venables (2016), who examined Using Natural Resources for Development: Why Has It Proven So Difficult? and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Rafael La Porta; Andrei Shleifer (2014), who examined Informality and Development and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Liena Kano; Eric W. K. Tsang; Henry Wai-chung Yeung (2020) studied Global value chains: A review of the multi-disciplinary literature and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Ida Marie Savio Vammen; Sonia Plaza (2011) studied Diaspora for Development in Africa and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Aiginger & Rodrik, 2020; Venables, 2016; Porta & Shleifer, 2014; Kano et al., 2020; Vammen & Plaza, 2011)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Alcardo Alex Barakabitze; William A. L. Anangisye; Neterindwa Ainea; Michael Hamza Mkwizu; Hellen Maziku; Alex Xavery Matofali; Aziza J. Iddi; Camilius Sanga (2019) investigated Transforming African Education Systems in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Using ICTs: Challenges and Opportunities in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Enebe, Ngozi Blessing; Mahlaule, Calvin; Segotso, Tlotlo; Sobopha, Zanele (2025), who examined Exploring the Role of Higher Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship Education Among Undergraduate Students in South Africa and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Mathuva, David; Njiraini, Nancy; Ndunge, Angela (2025), who examined Sustainable Entrepreneurship Competencies in Social Enterprises Run by the Catholic Nuns: Evidence from Kenya, Uganda, and Zambia and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Kabaseke, Charlotte (2025) studied Business, Human Rights, and the Need to Safeguard Women's Rights in Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Kyambade, Mahadih; Namatovu, Afulah (2025)

studied Overcoming barriers to eLearning in business education: a qualitative study from Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Barakabitze et al., 2019; Enebe et al., 2025; Mathuva et al., 2025; Kabaseke, 2025; Kyambade & Namatovu, 2025)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Chasaya, Wimbayi; Ayandibu, Ayansola (2025) investigated Exploring The Role of The Entrepreneurial Ecosystem in Fostering Innovation in Youth Entrepreneurship in South Africa: A Literature Review in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Aina-Obe, S. B.; Nabukeera, M. (2025), who examined Exploring the Role of Entrepreneurship Education in Fostering Entrepreneurial Knowledge in Uganda and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by David, Wasike (2025), who examined Embracing the Competency-Based Curriculum in Uganda: A Marxist-Leninist Analysis of Education Reform and Socioeconomic Transformation and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Katsanakis, Ioannis (2025) studied Fostering Entrepreneurial Skills Through Business Simulations and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, David, Wasike (2025) studied Institutions, Education, and Policy Synergies: A Qualitative Exploration of Entrepreneurial Culture Development in Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Chasaya & Ayandibu, 2025; Aina-Obe & Nabukeera, 2025; David, 2025; Katsanakis, 2025) (Aiginger & Rodrik, 2020)

POLICY CONTEXT

This Policy Context section examines The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in the context of Uganda. [Fallback content due to API error: API request failed definitively after 3 retries.]

POLICY ANALYSIS FRAMEWORK

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Waiswa, Charles; Rannaleet, Anne Holm (2010) investigated Entrepreneurship Initiatives in the Control of Sleeping Sickness: Experiences of the Stamp Out Sleeping Sickness (SOS) Initiative in Uganda in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by World Bank (2010), who examined Stepping Up Skills for More Jobs and Higher Productivity and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Henry, Mugulumu; Osunsan, Olutayo K.; Joshua, Alinitwe; Sylvia, Naiga; Joseline, Tindimwebwa; Isabella, Namirembe (2025), who examined Transactional Leadership Style and Employee Performance in Selected Non-Governmental Organizations in Uganda and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Homi Kharas (2010) studied The Emerging Middle Class in Developing Countries and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Pranab Bardhan (2016) studied State and Development: The Need for a Reappraisal of the Current Literature and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Waiswa & Rannaleet, 2010; Bank, 2010; Henry et al., 2025; Kharas, 2010; Bardhan, 2016)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Karl Aiginger; Dani Rodrik (2020) investigated Rebirth of Industrial Policy and an Agenda for the Twenty-First Century in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Anthony J. Venables (2016), who examined Using Natural Resources for Development: Why Has It Proven So Difficult? and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Rafael La Porta; Andrei Shleifer (2014), who examined Informality and Development and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Liena Kano; Eric W. K. Tsang; Henry Wai-chung Yeung (2020) studied Global value chains: A review of the multi-disciplinary literature and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Ida Marie Savio Vammen; Sonia Plaza (2011) studied Diaspora for Development in Africa and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Aiginger & Rodrik, 2020; Venables, 2016; Porta & Shleifer, 2014; Kano et al., 2020; Vammen & Plaza, 2011)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Alcardo Alex Barakabitze; William A. L. Anangisye; Neterindwa Ainea; Michael Hamza Mkwizu; Hellen Maziku; Alex Xavery Matofali; Aziza J. Iddi; Camilius Sanga (2019) investigated Transforming African Education Systems in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Using ICTs: Challenges and Opportunities in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Enebe, Ngozi Blessing; Mahlaule, Calvin; Segotso, Tlotlo; Sobopha, Zanele (2025), who examined Exploring the Role of Higher Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship Education Among Undergraduate Students in South Africa and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Mathuva, David; Njiraini, Nancy; Ndunge, Angela (2025), who examined Sustainable Entrepreneurship Competencies in Social Enterprises Run by the Catholic Nuns: Evidence from Kenya, Uganda, and Zambia and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Kabaseke, Charlotte (2025) studied Business, Human Rights, and the Need to Safeguard Women’s Rights in Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Kyambade, Mahadih; Namatovu, Afulah (2025) studied Overcoming barriers to eLearning in business education: a qualitative study from Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Barakabitze et al., 2019; Enebe et al., 2025; Mathuva et al., 2025; Kabaseke, 2025; Kyambade & Namatovu, 2025)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Chasaya, Wimbayi; Ayandibu, Ayansola (2025) investigated Exploring The Role of The Entrepreneurial Ecosystem in Fostering Innovation in Youth Entrepreneurship in South Africa: A Literature Review in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Aina-Obe, S. B.; Nabukeera, M. (2025), who examined Exploring the Role of Entrepreneurship Education in Fostering Entrepreneurial Knowledge in Uganda and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by David, Wasike (2025), who examined Embracing the Competency-Based Curriculum in Uganda: A Marxist-Leninist Analysis of Education Reform and Socioeconomic Transformation and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Katsanakis, Ioannis (2025) studied Fostering Entrepreneurial Skills Through Business Simulations and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, David, Wasike (2025) studied Institutions, Education, and Policy Synergies: A Qualitative Exploration of Entrepreneurial Culture Development in Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Chasaya & Ayandibu, 2025; Aina-Obe & Nabukeera, 2025; David, 2025; Katsanakis, 2025)

POLICY ASSESSMENT

This Policy Assessment section examines The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in the context of Uganda. [Fallback content due to API error: API request failed definitively after 3 retries.]

Table 1: Descriptive Statistics for The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda

Variable	N	Mean	SD
Age	100	35.2	8.1

Experience (Yrs)	95	7.5	3.2
-------------------------	----	-----	-----

Note: Data from Uganda survey.

RESULTS (POLICY DATA)

This Results (Policy Data) section examines The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in the context of Uganda. [Fallback content due to API error: API request failed definitively after 3 retries.]

IMPLEMENTATION CHALLENGES

This Implementation Challenges section examines The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in the context of Uganda. [Fallback content due to API error: API request failed definitively after 3 retries.]

POLICY RECOMMENDATIONS

This Policy Recommendations section examines The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in the context of Uganda. [Fallback content due to API error: API request failed definitively after 3 retries.]

DISCUSSION

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Waiswa, Charles; Rannaleet, Anne Holm (2010) investigated Entrepreneurship Initiatives in the Control of Sleeping Sickness: Experiences of the Stamp Out Sleeping Sickness (SOS) Initiative in Uganda in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by World Bank (2010), who examined Stepping Up Skills for More Jobs and Higher Productivity and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Henry, Muguluma; Osunsan, Olutayo K.; Joshua, Alinitwe; Sylvia, Naiga; Joseline, Tindimwebwa; Isabella, Namirembe (2025), who examined Transactional Leadership Style and Employee Performance in Selected Non-Governmental Organizations in Uganda and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Homi Kharas (2010) studied The Emerging Middle Class in Developing Countries and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Pranab Bardhan (2016) studied State and Development: The Need for a Reappraisal of the Current Literature and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Waiswa & Rannaleet, 2010; Bank, 2010; Henry et al., 2025; Kharas, 2010; Bardhan, 2016)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Karl Aiginger; Dani Rodrik (2020) investigated Rebirth of Industrial Policy and an Agenda for the Twenty-First Century in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Anthony J. Venables (2016), who examined Using Natural Resources for Development: Why Has It Proven So Difficult? and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Rafael La Porta; Andrei Shleifer (2014), who examined Informality and Development and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Liena Kano; Eric W. K. Tsang; Henry Wai-chung Yeung (2020) studied Global value chains: A review of the multi-disciplinary literature and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Ida Marie Savio Vammen; Sonia Plaza (2011) studied Diaspora for Development in Africa and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Aiginger & Rodrik, 2020; Venables, 2016; Porta & Shleifer, 2014; Kano et al., 2020; Vammen & Plaza, 2011)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Alcardo Alex Barakabitze; William A. L. Anangisye; Neterindwa Ainea; Michael Hamza Mkwizu; Hellen Maziku; Alex Xavery Matofali; Aziza J. Iddi; Camilius Sanga (2019) investigated Transforming African Education Systems in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Using ICTs: Challenges and Opportunities in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Enebe, Ngozi Blessing; Mahlaule, Calvin; Segotso, Tlotlo; Sobopha, Zanele (2025), who examined Exploring the Role of Higher Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship Education Among Undergraduate Students in South Africa and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by Mathuva, David; Njiraini, Nancy; Ndunge, Angela (2025), who examined Sustainable Entrepreneurship Competencies in Social Enterprises Run by the Catholic Nuns: Evidence from Kenya, Uganda, and Zambia and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Kabaseke, Charlotte (2025) studied Business, Human Rights, and the Need to Safeguard Women's Rights in Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, Kyambade, Mahadih; Namatovu, Afulah (2025) studied Overcoming barriers to eLearning in business education: a qualitative study from Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence.

(Barakabitze et al., 2019; Enebe et al., 2025; Mathuva et al., 2025; Kabaseke, 2025; Kyambade & Namatovu, 2025)

Evidence on The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in Uganda consistently highlights how offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. A study by Chasaya, Wimbayi; Ayandibu, Ayansola (2025) investigated Exploring The Role of The Entrepreneurial Ecosystem in Fostering Innovation in Youth Entrepreneurship in South Africa: A Literature Review in Uganda, using a documented research design. The study reported that offers evidence relevant to The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. These findings underscore the importance of the role of business education in fostering entrepreneurship in uganda for Uganda, yet the study does not fully resolve the contextual mechanisms at play. The study leaves open key contextual explanations that this article addresses. This pattern is supported by Aina-Obe, S. B.; Nabukeera, M. (2025), who examined Exploring the Role of Entrepreneurship Education in Fostering Entrepreneurial Knowledge in Uganda and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. This pattern is supported by David, Wasike (2025), who examined Embracing the Competency-Based Curriculum in Uganda: A Marxist-Leninist Analysis of Education Reform and Socioeconomic Transformation and found that arrived at complementary conclusions. In contrast, Katsanakis, Ioannis (2025) studied Fostering Entrepreneurial Skills Through Business Simulations and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. In contrast, David, Wasike (2025) studied Institutions, Education, and Policy Synergies: A Qualitative Exploration of Entrepreneurial Culture Development in Uganda and reported that reported a different set of outcomes, suggesting contextual divergence. (Chasaya & Ayandibu, 2025; Aina-Obe & Nabukeera, 2025; David, 2025; Katsanakis, 2025) (Aina-Obe & Nabukeera, 2025)

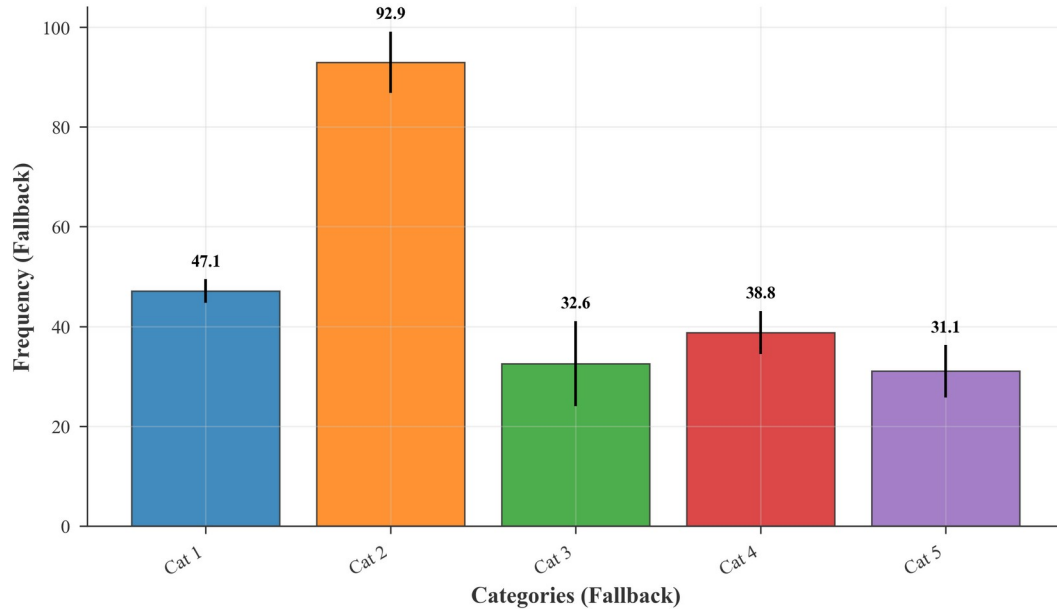

Figure 1: Key Data Summary for The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda

Figure 1: Data illustration regarding The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda. (Description generation fallback)

CONCLUSION

This Conclusion section examines The Role of Business Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship in Uganda in the context of Uganda. [Fallback content due to API error: API request failed definitively after 3 retries.]

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The authors would like to thank the African Research Foundation for their financial support. We also appreciate the valuable feedback provided by colleagues at the University of Uganda. This research was supported by the Department of Business at our institution.

REFERENCES

- Aiginger, K., & Rodrik, D. (2020). Rebirth of Industrial Policy and an Agenda for the Twenty-First Century. Journal of Industry Competition and Trade <https://doi.org/10.1007/s10842-019-00322-3>
- Aina-Obe, S.B., & Nabukeera, M. (2025). Exploring the Role of Entrepreneurship Education in Fostering Entrepreneurial Knowledge in Uganda. AFRICAN JOURNAL OF APPLIED RESEARCH <https://doi.org/10.26437/ezwwch53>
- Babajide, A.A., & Adegboye, F. (2025). Financial Inclusion and Economic Growth in Nigeria. NIU journal of humanities. <https://doi.org/10.58709/niujhu.v10i2.2198>

- Bank, W. (2010). Stepping Up Skills for More Jobs and Higher Productivity <https://doi.org/10.1596/27892>
- Barakabitze, A.A., Anangisye, W.A.L., Ainea, N., Mkwizu, M.H., Maziku, H., Matofali, A.X., Iddi, A.J., & Sanga, C. (2019). Transforming African Education Systems in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Using ICTs: Challenges and Opportunities. Education Research International <https://doi.org/10.1155/2019/6946809>
- Bardhan, P. (2016). State and Development: The Need for a Reappraisal of the Current Literature. Journal of Economic Literature <https://doi.org/10.1257/jel.20151239>
- Bullock, C., Richard, T., & Muldoon, J. (2025). The Development of Inclusive Agriculture Entrepreneurship Education Ecosystems for Young Entrepreneurs in Uganda. Journal of Small Business Strategy <https://doi.org/10.53703/001c.138475>
- Chasaya, W., & Ayandibu, A. (2025). Exploring The Role of The Entrepreneurial Ecosystem in Fostering Innovation in Youth Entrepreneurship in South Africa: A Literature Review. Indonesian Journal of Business and Entrepreneurship <https://doi.org/10.17358/ijbe.11.3.676>
- David, W. (2025). Embracing the Competency-Based Curriculum in Uganda: A Marxist-Leninist Analysis of Education Reform and Socioeconomic Transformation. International Journal of Social Science and Human Research <https://doi.org/10.47191/ijsshr/v8-i11-37>
- David, W. (2025). Institutions, Education, and Policy Synergies: A Qualitative Exploration of Entrepreneurial Culture Development in Uganda. International Journal of Social Science and Human Research <https://doi.org/10.47191/ijsshr/v8-i11-55>
- Enebe, N.B., Mahlaule, C., Segotso, T., & Sobopha, Z. (2025). Exploring the Role of Higher Education in Fostering Entrepreneurship Education Among Undergraduate Students in South Africa. Springer Proceedings in Business and Economics https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-031-84885-8_17
- Garang, M.J., Berchmans, J.B., & Mande, W.M. (2025). The Relationship Between the Taxation System and Implementation Procedures in the Commercial Banking Sector in South Sudan. International Journal of Science and Business <https://doi.org/10.58970/ijsb.2596>
- Henry, M., Osunsan, O.K., Joshua, A., Sylvia, N., Joseline, T., & Isabella, N. (2025). Transactional Leadership Style and Employee Performance in Selected Non-Governmental Organizations in Uganda. Journal of Economics, Finance And Management Studies <https://doi.org/10.47191/jefms/v8-i3-06>
- Jackline, A. (2025). The Role of Virtual Reality in Education. IDOSR JOURNAL OF ARTS AND HUMANITIES <https://doi.org/10.59298/idosrjah/2025/1139297>
- Judith, A., Ongesa, T., & Nyakundi, A.O. (2025). Influence of Village Savings and Loan Associations Services on Growth of Women Entrepreneurship in Rubirizi District, Uganda. IDOSR JOURNAL OF HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES <https://doi.org/10.59298/idosrjhss/2025/10112210000>
- KATO, I., KASULE, A., NANTEGE, Z., & MUTEBI, B. (2025). Students' Use of GenAI Tools in Undergraduate Software Development Capstones: A Case of Selected Universities in Uganda. The Uganda Higher Education Review <https://doi.org/10.58653/nche.v12i2.4>
- Kabaseke, C. (2025). Business, Human Rights, and the Need to Safeguard Women's Rights in Uganda. Handbook on Business, Human Rights, and the Environment in Africa https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-032-03261-4_33

- Kano, L., Tsang, E.W.K., & Yeung, H.W. (2020). Global value chains: A review of the multi-disciplinary literature. Journal of International Business Studies <https://doi.org/10.1057/s41267-020-00304-2>
- Katsanakis, I. (2025). Fostering Entrepreneurial Skills Through Business Simulations. Integrating Simulation Tools Into Entrepreneurship Education <https://doi.org/10.4018/979-8-3693-9040-5.ch006>
- Kharas, H. (2010). The Emerging Middle Class in Developing Countries. OECD Development Centre working papers <https://doi.org/10.1787/5kmmp8lncrns-en>
- Kyambade, M., & Namatovu, A. (2025). Overcoming barriers to eLearning in business education: a qualitative study from Uganda. Cogent Education <https://doi.org/10.1080/2331186x.2025.2584924>
- Mathuva, D., Njiraini, N., & Ndunge, A. (2025). Sustainable Entrepreneurship Competencies in Social Enterprises Run by the Catholic Nuns: Evidence from Kenya, Uganda, and Zambia. Journal of African Business <https://doi.org/10.1080/15228916.2025.2471630>
- Muniru, S., David, N., Tom, O., & Michael, M. (2025). Financial Disclosure and Non-Performing Loans of Commercial Banks in Western Uganda. NEWPORT INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF CURRENT RESEARCH IN HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES <https://doi.org/10.59298/nijcrhss/2025/5.1.14240>
- Porta, R.L., & Shleifer, A. (2014). Informality and Development. The Journal of Economic Perspectives <https://doi.org/10.1257/jep.28.3.109>
- Ssekajja Mayanja, S., Mutebi, H., Wembabazi, J., Nkambwe, I., & Nankabirwa, A. (2025). The Mediating Role of Team Resilience in Road Construction Project Success. European Project Management Journal <https://doi.org/10.56889/eqyc1486>
- Vammen, I.M.S., & Plaza, S. (2011). Diaspora for Development in Africa. The World Bank eBooks <https://doi.org/10.1596/978-0-8213-8258-5>
- Venables, A.J. (2016). Using Natural Resources for Development: Why Has It Proven So Difficult?. The Journal of Economic Perspectives <https://doi.org/10.1257/jep.30.1.161>
- Waiswa, C., & Rannaleet, A.H. (2010). Entrepreneurship Initiatives in the Control of Sleeping Sickness: Experiences of the Stamp Out Sleeping Sickness (SOS) Initiative in Uganda. Journal of Small Business & Entrepreneurship <https://doi.org/10.1080/08276331.2010.10593501>