ABSTRACT

This article examines Disarmament, Demobilisation, and Reintegration: Implementation Failures and Security Setbacks: An Empirical Investigation with a focused emphasis on Ethiopia within the field of African Studies. It is structured as a perspective piece that organises the problem, the strongest verified scholarship, and the main analytical implications in a concise publication-ready format.

The paper foregrounds the most relevant institutional, policy, or theoretical dynamics for the African context and closes with a practical conclusion linked to the core argument.

Keywords: Reintegration Implementation Failures, Disarmament Demobilisation, Reintegration Implementation, Implementation Failures, Security Setbacks, Empirical Investigation

Article Highlights

- Implementation failures in Ethiopia's DDR programmes undermine long-term security
- Institutional mechanisms require African-specific adaptations for effective reintegration
- Security setbacks directly correlate with inadequate demobilisation frameworks
- Empirical evidence reveals policy-practice gaps in post-conflict transitions

Ethiopian Context

Focuses on institutional dynamics and mechanisms shaping DDR implementation failures within Ethiopia's specific African setting.

Examines how implementation gaps affect security outcomes in post-conflict transitions.
