

Pan-Africanism in Ghana: Challenges and Opportunities in the Post-2006 Era

Pan-Africanism in Ghana: Challenges and Opportunities

Anne Bird

Ghana Institute of Management and Public Administration (GIMPA)

Funmilayo Abrokwa

*Ghana Institute of Management and Public Administration (GIMPA)
Department of Interdisciplinary Studies, Food Research Institute (FRI)*

Abena Appiah

Food Research Institute (FRI)

Aisha Gyamfi

Ghana Institute of Management and Public Administration (GIMPA)

Correspondence: abird@gmail.com

DOI
10.5281/zenodo.18834

991

3

---

Received 04 July 2006

Accepted 22 September
2006

Abstract

Pan-Africanism has been a significant force in African politics since the mid-20th century, with Ghana playing a pivotal role in its evolution and implementation. This qualitative study employs semi-structured interviews and document analysis to gather data from government officials, civil society representatives, and academic experts who have direct experience with Pan-Africanist initiatives in Ghana. The sample size includes at least 15 participants across various sectors of governance. The findings indicate that while there is a strong ideological commitment to Pan-Africanism within the political elite, implementation often faces logistical and resource-related challenges, particularly in rural areas where access to information and resources is limited. There is also evidence of innovative approaches such as community-based initiatives that have shown promise in overcoming these barriers. The study concludes that while there are significant obstacles, including funding constraints and cultural resistance, the adoption of Pan-Africanist ideas has led to some tangible improvements in governance and social welfare programmes. These efforts highlight the potential for further integration and expansion of Pan-Africanism within Ghanaian governance structures. Recommendations include increased investment in digital infrastructure to enhance access to information, fostering partnerships between government agencies and local communities to leverage existing resources more effectively, and incorporating Pan-Africanist principles into broader national development plans.

Keywords: Pan-Africanism, Pan-African Solidarity Movement, Neo-Pan-Africanism, African National Congress, Kwani Taa, Ethnography, Decolonization

ABSTRACT-ONLY PUBLICATION

This is an abstract-only publication. The complete research paper with full methodology, results, discussion, and references is available upon request.

✉ REQUEST FULL PAPER

Email: info@parj.africa

Request your copy of the full paper today!

SUBMIT YOUR RESEARCH

Are you a researcher in Africa? We welcome your submissions!

Join our community of African scholars and share your groundbreaking work.

Submit at: app.parj.africa

Scan to visit app.parj.africa

Open Access Scholarship from PARJ

Empowering African Research | Advancing Global Knowledge