Abstract

The University of Bissau in Guinea-Bissau serves as a pivotal institution for education and research across various fields. A qualitative approach will be employed to explore the academic outputs, research activities, and educational programmes at the University of Bissau. The University of Bissau plays a crucial role in both producing knowledge and disseminating it to the wider community, particularly through its engagement with regional industries. Further investment in research infrastructure and collaboration initiatives would enhance the university's impact on local innovation and development.
